Sterilization Monitoring

HIV DIAGNOSTIC

With government regulations requiring you to implement a standardized testing protocol for all autoclaves and CDC guidelines requiring verification using biological indicators for each sterilizer at least weekly. Fast and accurate Biological spore testing is the definitive method of determining the efficacy of your sterilizer, you simply include the test in your daily or weekly routine and mail the sample to us, where we perform all tests. HIV Diagnostic has never been more important. Please Note: Every load containing implantable devices should be monitored with such indicators, and the items quarantined until Biological Indicator results are known.

DiamondCrown™ - direct/indirect restorations

Indicated for direct restorations and indirect prosthodontic applications such as crown,bridge, inlays, onlays and veneers as well as implant suprastructure. The light cured nature of the entire range means that adding to material chairside is simple and set up costs to laboratories are minimal. Patented liquid crystal technology and a PEX resin based matrix properties are microcrystalline making DiamondCrown™ both macrorigid and microelastic. This eliminates the problems inherent with Bis-GMA or UDMA amorphous and brittle resins. With the same wear rate and hardness as human enamel, low water sorption and shrinkage rates, and enhanced diametral tensile strength DiamondCrown™ is the closest thing to tooth available to date. A highly biocompatible nonmetallic dental restorative material and an advanced bonding system that actually makes Polypeptides link to dentin. The DiamondCrown™ MasterKit incorporates DiamondBond 001 to ensure premium results every time.

DiamondBond™ 001 - 7th Generation bonding system

DiamondBond 001 creates durable adhesion with enamel, dentin, porcelain and metals.
Can be used with direct fillings of C&B applications and will bond with dry or moist dentin in an equally effective manner. Ultra-fine film thickness allows maximum bond strength with high resistance to fracture.

- Triple Action Bonding
- Shock Absorbing
- Proven Longevity
- Biocompatible

Ideal with DiamondCrown, DiamondLite, and DiamondLink

This highly biocompatible 7th generation universal bonding system consists of:
A. DiamondBond Conditioner 7cc, DiamondBond 001 Light Cure Adhesive 7cc and for optional use a Dual Cure Activator 7cc. DiamondBond forms a biochemical as well as physical bond with dentin.
B. DiamondBond 001 also contains HEMA – a hydrophyllic monomer which allows proper wettability and penetration of dentin tubules to assure bonding in a moist environment.
C. The crystalline structure of the DiamondBond 001's PEX adhesive resin, gives a high fracture toughness (shock absorbing character) to the bonding layer that virtually eliminates microcrazing and delamination resultant from cyclic masticatory fatigue. This unique chemistry helps form a permanent seal that reduces post-op. sensitivity. Hybridized interface, a barrier to microgap formation and microbial invasion.

Migran-X™ Put an end to your Patient's pain!

Migran-X™ Devices by TSI

"Our data thus far in CRA and in study clubs with which I work have shown this very simple, easy-to-place, inexpensive device creates a significant reduction in pain"
"In 1 to 4 days it reduced or eliminated (TMD) symptoms in most patients we treated in the CRA study ... I hope you'll look this over carefully. The concept does work... it is simple, fast, effective and inexpensive. What more do you want?" -Gordon Christensen, DDS, Phd

RV Upper Device

The Discluding Element has been reduced in vertical dimension when compared to the Standard Device (see below), as well as shortened labially. The labial wall has also been reduced in thickness. Primarily intended for the maxilla. The Upper device is most commonly used when incisal overlap is more than indeal, making the Lower device contraindicated (the Lower device would cause for an excessive condylar rotation during occluding on the device). The DE can be ramped "up" towards the palate to ensure minimal VDO during occluding (thereby minimizing condylar rotation).

IG Lower Device

The Lower device is now the most commonly used device. The Discluding Element of the Lower device is tapered to the lateral borders of the device. Primarily intended for the mandible (although not exclusively), the design most efficiently prevents canine occluding contact.

Auxiliary "Slider" Device

The Auxiliary "slider" is commonly used with a "deep bite" incisal overlap, where the DE is considerably ramped or "stepped" to maintain minimal opening. It can also be used over the incisors that oppose an NTI device (typically the Lower device) to prevent the Lower device from fracture and/or to facilitate gliding movements when the incisors opposing the NTI device are irregular. Also commonly used on both arches simultaneously for the patient with normal incisal overlap, making for an extremely simple and effective therapeutic effect. Also for the migraine patient who requires reduction of daytime activity. See: Protocol for Migraine Therapy

IG Lower-Wide Device

The Lower-Wide device has a thicker (and therefore, stronger) DE. The Lower-Wide was originally designed for the patients whose extremely intense clenching could fracture the original Lower device (the thickness of the Lower device's DE has since been increased, now making the Lower-Wide device less frequently necessary). The width of the Lower-Wide allows for increased retention for those cases where added retention is desired.
